LEAGUE CHANGE SMALL

Most Schedules Will Be Carried Out and Open as First Planned.

ASSOCIATION ONE AMONG EXCEPTIONS

NEW YORK, March 12.—Judging from the various major and minor league baseball schedules made public to date, there is to be little change in the general playing schedule for the season of 1931. A majority of the leagues have selected opening and closing dates which correspond closely to those of the past few years.

The chief changes are to be found in the schedules of the International league and the American association. In round figures these two organizations have cut six weeks off their regular seasons in order to provide dates for the inter-league series of forty-eight games to be played at the close of the season, and in the two associations.

The National and American leagues will open on Wednesday, April 11 and close on Thursday, October 4, which will permit the initial game of the World's Series being played on Monday, October 5, if eastern or western teams are competitors, or Monday, October 6, in case the series proves to be an inter-sectional contest.

In other respects there are few novelties. The Pacific coast league having the longest season, while one or more of the class D leagues will stage the shortest pennant races. The lot of opening and closing days as announced to date from official or semi-official sources are as follows:

National League	April 11	Oct. 4	154
American League	April 12	Oct. 4	154
International League	April 17	Aug. 5	112
South Atlantic League	April 19	Aug. 11	106
Western League	April 18	Sept. 3	140
Southern association	April 12	Sept. 15	114
Tri-State League	April 5	Sept. 5	154
Pacific Coast League	April 2	Oct. 26	189
American association	April 13	Aug. 5	112
Blue Ridge League	May 1	Sept. 15	94
Southern league	April 12	Sept. 15	154
Eastern league	April 12	Sept. 15	154
Western association	April 12	Sept. 15	154
Georgia-Alabama League	May 7	Sept. 15	154

CHICAGO, Ill., March 12.—Jess Willard, heavyweight champion, left a loophole for himself when he with a circus again this season. The loophole is a clause in the contract which permits him, at any time, to give three weeks' notice.

Jess wasn't quite sure when he signed up how the public would take to the idea of having its champion out of the ring for another year. A few weeks ago there didn't appear to be any men in sight capable of giving him a good battle for the title. Then Fred Fulton, of Rochester, Minn., hopped up and commenced mowing them down as fast as they faced him, and Willard was compelled to sit up and take notice. With one ear to the ground, the champion realized that public opinion sooner or later might force him to meet Fulton or be accused of fearing him. But the champion had not reached his apex and Willard looked up with the circus.

Willard doesn't want to lose his title. It is the asset which has been earning the money for him ever since he dethroned Jack Johnson at Havana, and with the title

FULTON AND WILLARD WOULD BE TWO LEFTIES

When Jess Willard and Fred Fulton eventually face each other in the ring, there will be a left-handed battle for the world's heavyweight crown.

Imagine two giants, both towering exceedingly "mean" portland cements, and you will get the idea of what this battle will be. It is the question of time until the big Minnesota planter will get his chance.

Fulton southpawed his way a step nearer to the coveted match with Willard when he met Charley Weinstock under the glare of incandescent at Madison Square garden. Within the course of two rounds Fulton had won, for the New Jersey Adonis was punching more nor less than a toy in his hands, and referee Bill Brown did the only thing any self-respecting referee could do in stopping the bout.

Weinstock, outwitted by 23 pounds, and at a disadvantage in both height and reach, might just as well have tried to batter down the Rock of Gibraltar. Fulton was too big and too strong, and the match was a poor one from the spectators' standpoint.

WILLARD HAMPER PLAYER

Los Angeles Makes Suggestion To Get Better Hitting.

PLANS CIRCLE TO HALT THE FIELDER

ONE OF THE most unusual plans ever advanced to increase hitting in baseball has been suggested by Jess W. Orndorff, now a real estate dealer in Los Angeles, and formerly a ball player in minor and major leagues. During his career in the game he played with both Boston and Chicago in the National league, and he is a student of the game, both as a player and fan.

Orndorff's plan is a simple one to explain. It has to do with the outfielders. He would confine each outfield player within the limit of a circle ten feet in diameter. Each fielder would be compelled by his rule to remain in his prescribed circle until the batter hits the ball, when he would be permitted to chase after it.

The circles would be placed at a reasonable distance from the home plate and in or near the center of each fielder's territory as possible. This plan, explains Orndorff, would prevent the fielders from laying for the batters as they do under the present rules, and while it would tend to develop greater hitting it would also create flashier fielding.

Orndorff believes his plan is worthy of a trial. It would require no changes in the present rules that we can think of, merely adding a rule providing for the confining of circles in the field and commanding that the fielders take up their positions within the ten-foot limit until the ball is hit. The proposed plan would make the work of the fielders more difficult, but it is reasonable, at that.

AMBULANCE CLUB FALLS FOR HITS

CLIPPING THE ball practically at will the 33d Michigan baseball club Sunday afternoon gave the Third U. S. Ambulance company a terrific lacing. The final score registered at Camp Custer was 12 to 4, with the militiamen safe in the lead. The Sunday game was just another to add to the Michiganders' long string of victories without a defeat.

Third sacker, Conner, again swung the willow to advantage and nipped off three safeties while Shreeves and Laurent did likewise. Laurent once more showed that he is a hitting pitcher. On the other hand, he held the hitters carriers to but a quarter of clean blows.

Except for scoring three runs in the third inning, the Ambulances could not do much. They came back with another tally in the seventh, but that was all they got. The Wolverines men did their most damage in the fifth frame by chipping out nine hits for a total of seven runs. Errors by the regulars aid the Michigan men who had but three miscues.

The box score which follows is rather incomplete because the sacker failed to take everything into account and give full particulars. Here are the 17th U. S. Infantry, umpired the contest.

RACE STAKES WILL BE TWO MILLIONS

The stakes which will be raced for during the 1931 season in Austria and Hungary will aggregate two million dollars, a considerable sum in the Austro-Hungarian monetary system. The stakes are being offered by the Hungarian Jockey club, the big Budapest organization, has put up 2,561,200 kronen ($512,840). Other smaller organizations, of which there is a considerable number in the dual monarchy, have guaranteed four million and several other thousand more, necessary to bring the total up to ten million kronen.

ANOTHER TEAM ORGANIZES. The El Paso Furniture company recently organized a baseball club and now stands ready to meet all comers. Americans preferred. The furniture men are prepared to battle any team during the day. Charles Aronson, at telephone number 5421, will arrange for dates.

ABANDON SPORTS AFTER WAR, PLAN

Change in Title of German Athletic Body May Mean Quits.

THE action of the German Imperial Olympic committee in changing its title to the "German Imperial Committee for Bodily Exercise" has aroused much speculation among athletes authorities throughout the world. Many close followers of Olympic sports have expressed the opinion that the move on the part of the German committee is an intimation that Germany will not compete in these international sports after the war. Others hold that the change of name merely marks the taking over of other duties and plans considered more necessary and pressing at this time in Germany than consideration of future Olympic meets.

In this connection it can be said that the international Olympic committee has not abandoned the idea of these games and that with the restoration of peace in Europe there will be a determined effort made to hold an international meet within a year following the official close of the conflict. It is also estimated that the exercising may be more than a series of athletic competitions; taking the form of an international celebration of the restoration of peace, with imposing ceremonies and pageants to which the nations of the world will be invited to send representative delegations.

Being a Pirate, you can't see why Jimmy Callahan can't get out another few good hitters and pitchers. Press reports say the Piratical manager has taken advantage of him to get the club in pennant winning shape. Hitting and pitching are some of the weak points. Pray, what can the rest be?

It would be many more weeks before both the City and Army baseball leagues open their seasons, and when they do there is going to be a lot of pasturing for civilians and soldiers alike. Just what material the Army league will show has not been announced but if good teams are matched with regularity there is bound to be a lot of entertainment.

Reports are current that Les Barry will box in Milwaukee in three or four weeks. If he takes as much time to get ready for a boxing match as he does to join an army, there won't be any fight.

BOXERS PART AS REAL GOOD PALS

Anderson Who Was Not Hurt Badly Leaves With Friendly Feeling.

"I feel pretty good but I could be a lot better," said Freddie Anderson, just before leaving here for Dornum with manager, F. E. Porter and his brother, "Bud" Anderson. Freddie was hit pretty hard by O'Toole and it took him just three minutes and 45 seconds to get back to consciousness, but it was several hours before his head cleared up. However, the far Anderson took when he landed did not hurt him to amount to anything and he will be himself, it is expected, in a few days.

Just who Anderson will tackle next is hard to determine as Porter has not announced any future dates for the speedy little Dornum boy. It is unlikely that he will show with some good boys of these regions on some near date.

Anderson left here without anything but praise to say for O'Toole. "He's an awfully good boy and I wish him all the luck there is," he said. Both boys chatted together before Freddie left and convinced bystanders that there was no grudge in their heart, but merely a stroke of business, which each wanted to uphold his reputation.

FULTON IS BEST CHANCE

Milwaukee Sport Writer Believes Minnesota Giant is Coming.

LOGICAL MAN FOR BIG WORLD CHAMP

By TOM S. ANDREWS.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 12.—The question of selecting an opponent to pit against Jess Willard, in a battle for the heavy weight championship, brings out many interesting points as regards the size and style of fighters favored for such a contest. The old saying that a good little man cannot hope to defeat a good big man, holds good in many cases, but of course there are exceptions.

Take Tom Sayers, at one time champion of England, and you have a great exception. Sayers was hardly what might be termed a good sized middleweight, for he weighed around 155 pounds, but he was a real fighter, and after many battles in the old country he came to the states and made his home, passing away at St. Louis in 1898, with the honor of having lost the title and regained it again.

Then again, in 1860 Sayers fought the famous "Punch" Boy, John C. Hennessy (an American giant, who weighed 220 pounds), 42 rounds to a draw. That was Tom Sayers' last battle. Tom Allen was another small man for heavyweight champion, and after many battles in the old country he came to the states and made his home, passing away at St. Louis in 1898, with the honor of having lost the title and regained it again.

St. Louis giant, Mike McCoolle, the famous Burns weighed out on an alleged foot in 1869 but in 1873 Allen beat McCoolle at a point near St. Louis in 25 rounds. In 1888 Charlie Mitchell, weighing around 155 pounds at the time, fought the only John L. Sullivan 30 rounds in France, it being called a draw by mutual consent. Sullivan weighed over 200 pounds.

Then came James J. Corbett with his new style of boxing and defeated John L. Sullivan in 1892 and two years later Corbett bested Mitchell in three rounds. Tommy Burns weighed only 160 pounds when he won the heavyweight title, and when he lost it to Jack Johnson he weighed 163, while the colored man weighed 216. Many writers favor Jack Dillon for a match against Willard, but it would be like leading a lamb to the slaughter. While Dillon is game and a hard pitcher, he would not be able to stand off hard jolts delivered by Jess' left and the same would go for Battling Levinsky, who has also been touted as a logical opponent for the champion.

Willard is a giant, scaling in condition, 245 pounds and standing six feet six inches, besides having a tremendous reach of arms. Therefore it will take a man of his size with a good left hand to beat Jess Willard. Carl Morris is his enough, but he lacks the clever left to do the business.

Of all the big fellows developed since Willard became champion in 1915, Fred Fulton, the Minnesota giant, stands out most prominently as the one best bet. Fulton has the size, weight, speed and hitting strength—a combination that looks mighty good to most betting men. Fred is almost as tall as Jess, scales 232 pounds in shape and he carries no superfluous flesh, as does Willard. Fulton has demonstrated his hitting ability by putting out most of his opponents with clean left jolts to the jaw, followed sometimes with short right crosses. He has also shown the aspiring heavyweights put against him to date, so what more can Jess and "Cherokee" Tom Jones ask for. "Big Jess" will have to watch out for this spring and when they clash there will no doubt be heavyweight fireworks.
